PREFACE.

A NEED still existing in our Sunday Schools and social meetings for hymns and tunes of solidity and character, the following collection is herewith presented, with the hope of supplying as far as possible this want.

It has been the purpose of the editor, First, to introduce only such hymns as shall be bright and helpful to the young, and elevating in Christian purpose to the older. Second, to use such music as shall not only be pleasing and attractive, but which, though not difficult, shall have dignity and character sufficient to repay all who spend the necessary time to become familiar with it.

Examination will show that it contains music specially adapted to the great festal days of The Church,

CHRISTMAS AND EASTER,

AS WELL AS FOR

ANNIVERSARY OCCASIONS, TEMPERANCE MEETINGS,

ETC., ETC.

In addition to the above, will be found a new Cantata for Sunday School exhibitions, entitled to which careful attention is respectfully invited. It is religious in character, and simple in construction, which renders it suitable for performance by schools of all grades.

That this collection may meet with the measure of success which it deserves is the earnest wish of

THE EDITOR.

A CANTATA FOR SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

ARGUMENT.

SCENE I.

Malus, in sympathy with public opinion in Philippi, condemns Paul and Silas, while Lydia and her children commend them. Anchises enters, and listens to the songs of the recently baptized Christian family. At length, Malus asserts that if Christ died and was buried, He could not be alive. This calls forth some of the proofs of his rising from the dead, with the singing of a hymn. Malus further objects to the cross-bearing belief of the Christians, as they sing; still the youths are glad to listen.

SCENE II.

Lydia fears a tumult. Officers arrest Paul and Silas, they are accused, scourged and imprisoned. Lydia and family believe that God will help them. Malus and Anchises doubt. Malus proposes a test to Lydia and children. Andrew gives a test to Malus and Anchises which they accept. Suddenly they are startled by singing in the prison. Lydia's faith is strengthened. Third and Fourth Citizens have no faith. First and Second Citizens believe. Suddenly there is a great earthquake. Prayer is answered, Malus and Anchises believe. The Jailor seeks Paul and Silas, brings them out of prison, and confesses Christ. Some of the incidents of the Scripture record are rehearsed, and the effects of Paul's midnight singing. Paul gives the praise to God.

 MALUS. Have you heard the news?
 CHILDREN. What news?
 MALUS. Not heard the news, about the Jews?
 CHILDREN. The Jews?
 MALUS. Two men, called Paul and Silas, being Jews,
 Are flooding the city with their views.
 RUTH. To condemn be not so ready,
 My mother Lydia, this good lady,
 Knows well that what Paul says, true is.
 MALUS (aside). Fie! fie! what a great pity,
 Too many fools in this Philippi!
 (Then to Ruth). My learned father, priest of Jupiter,
 In a twinkling, could teach her better;
 She'd quickly see
 How wise is he!
 SALOME. He may be wise, he may be strong,—
 Praise doth to only One belong!
 JAIRUS. He may be learned, he may be brave,—
 But only One our souls can save!
 MALUS (angry). Jupiter could kill you with a thunder bolt!
 ANDREW. Your saying doth not make it so,
 If I were you, I would go,
 And listen to men of God,
 And learn of things I did not know,
 Before condemning so.
 God spake in former times
 By prophets, now by His Son.
 Who can answer Paul? not one!
 MALUS (scoffingly). Ha! ha! what need we to answer or listen.
 He is in disgrace,—will be in prison.
 (Enter PAUL and SILAS.)
 HONORIA. If he ever goes to prison,
 'Twill be for preaching Christ is risen!
 JUDITH. Christ is risen, Christ is risen!
 PAUL. I would sing thus in a prison!

MALUS (aside). If you are so rash, I trow,
To prison you will surely go!
Your faith our rulers do not receive,
And it is more than I can believe,
Priests and temples casting down,
How our mighty gods would frown!

(Enter ANCHISES.)

ANCHISES. Peace to thee, lady, and to you, good friends.

LYDIA and CHILDREN. Welcome Anchises, tarry thou with us, our good Paul and Silas will listen while we sing.

RUTH. O yes, and we will sing a lovely story,
Of the Lord of life and glory.

PAUL.

How can He win to life, good sir!
First we must remember well,
If we would in heaven dwell,
For the evil we have done,
Some one must for us atone.

MALUS (excitedly.)

I have been taught, if we pay money to the priest, worship the gods, and obey them, the evil we do is forgotten, and we go to the happy country when we die.

SALOME.

O no, for the evil we have done,
Some one must for us atone,
And there was no one of worth
Could be found in heaven or earth;
Since we did not God obey,
None could the hand of Justice stay,
Till from above a Saviour came,
Jesus is his lovely Name,—
Meaning that He'll save from sin,
And His safe fold gather in:—
'Tis His love, to life doth win!
Washing us from guilt and sin!
Jesus! Name above all other!
Loveliest Name! and my mother
Says, He's kindest Elder Brother!
Never 'll find you such another!

RUTH.

- ANCHISES (doubtfully). I do not see,
How that true can be!
(Then to LYDIA.)
Good lady, is it possible—
May I ask, if you in truth,
(As I learn from the damsel Ruth)
Give harbour to the Jewish Paul,—
Do you countenance him at all?
- LYDIA (to Anchises). Son, it is true,
I'm glad to say I do.
Why do you complain
If I, of my abundance, entertain
These men so like angelic train?
A divining maiden, thou must know,
Future things could clearly show:—
By her art, all things she knew—
And from crowds much money drew.
- ANCHISES (to Lydia). That is true, and she found time
In her mission sublime,
To follow Paul and the Christians
As they went to prayer,
And by patronizing, mock them,
When they were there.
- JAIROS. She followed them, day after day,
And crying aloud these words, would say:
“These men are the servants of the Most High God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.”
- HONORIA. And so say you!
And believe it is true!
Why, then, object
To her, why not respect
Her good intention?
- ANCHISES (to Honoria). It was malice aforethought,—
Her design dissension;
Satanic divination,
As ever, evil brought.
- ANDREW (to Anchises). Once or twice might well suffice,
And would have been unnoticed,
But day after day,
To cry aloud in the way,
Called forth indignant protest.
- LYDIA. Your Jewish friend, I still must blame.
If you had seen her
Strange demeanor,
On ill purpose bent,
Loud-voiced and impudent,
To bring reproach and shame
Upon Christ's holy Name,
Good Paul you would not blame.
- ANCHISES (to Lydia). But my father and some others,
Acquired riches by this damsel,
They were lawful confederates,
And I wish you to know,
And to learn,
That your friend at one blow,
Demolished the whole concern!
- JAIROS (to Anchises). But my father and some others,
Acquired riches by this damsel,
They were lawful confederates,
And I wish you to know,
And to learn,
That your friend at one blow,
Demolished the whole concern!
- ANCHISES (to Jairus). But my father and some others,
Acquired riches by this damsel,
They were lawful confederates,
And I wish you to know,
And to learn,
That your friend at one blow,
Demolished the whole concern!

LYDIA. Son, follow thou no doubtful calling,
Lest come like defeat, appalling!
Now shall my children sing once more!

RUTH. Shall I go on, with my little song,
I promise thee, it is not long!

ANCHISES. I'm in love with thy sweet singing,
From thy heart joy is upspringing—
Go on, go on, and sing thou long.

MALUS.

Let me explain—you are wrong!
The Roman Records have proof strong,
That He was buried in a tomb,
Rock closed, safe sealed in gloom.
Why then about him do you strive,
As if He could be still alive?

PAUL.

Bright angels rolled the rock away,
Christ was the Life—no more death's prey!
Then after His God-like arising,
He appeared, His friends surprising!

SILAS.

Only to friends did He appear,
Their sad hearts to bless and cheer.

LYDIA.

He was seen by friends, at least five hundred,
Who believed with joy, and wondered.

PAUL.

And I Paul saw the Lord after he'd risen,
I who fear no bonds or prison.

Of the truth of what we say,
He is the Lord of Life and Glory!
Sing we the risen Saviour's story!

(Exeunt PAUL and SILAS.)

MALUS (with emotion.)

It is a pity,
 In this our city,
 These things were ever told!
 How can I afford
 To believe in your Lord?
 My faith must not lessen my gold!
 I would soon be a pauper, receiving
 What you say of Christian believing!

ANDREW.

More is the pity,
 If, in Philippi,
 These things cannot be told:

RUTH AND JAIRUS.

We can afford
 To trust in the Lord,
 E'en to the losing of our gold!
 Only thus are we children of God,
 And can share in His promised reward.

MALUS.

Can you bear the world's cold eyes?
 Bear that crowds should you despise?

RUTH.

I can bear it, I can brook
 Worldly frown and coldest look;
 If my heart is warm
 And to Jesus true,
 It is little harm
 Cold looks can do!

ANCHISES.

What if, in vain should be your toil;
 What if the mob your goods despoil?

JAIRUS.

O that would be too great a pity!
 And we'd remove from this your city.

RUTH.

And not like the good Paul,
 Work on all the faster,
 Joyfully take it all,
 From love to the Master!

LYDIA.

Well spoken, my little Ruth!
 I see you mean to hold to the truth!
 Now children sing for us the song of trust.

SCENE II.

A balcony adjoining the prison, overlooking the Market-Place. Time a few days later, at night.

(Enter LYDIA and her children, PAUL and SILAS, MALUS and ANCHISES.)

- LYDIA (aside). I fear the turn events are taking,
And that a tumult is awaking,
I grieve to think what may befall
Our godly teacher, learned Paul.
- ANCHISES (to Lydia). Grieve not, lady. These men deserve not your noble sympathy. Our rulers will teach them that we do not need them.
- MALUS (to Anchises). The idea of these men teaching us their religion, when we have a host of gods, and armies of priests. Our priests abhor this faith, which reproves them, and is founded on one Jesus, whom Paul says is alive.
- ANCHISES (to Lydia and Malus). But my father and others lost heavily, when Paul cast out the spirit from the maid.
- LYDIA. Yet Paul opened her eyes,
That before were blind,
The dread bonds of Satan,
Through Christ, did unbind.
- MALUS (aside). And left her employers without her gains. There is a great stir about it. Our magistrates are determined to stop such reckless deeds. Paul teaches a ruinous religion, and the good people of our city, which patterns
after Rome, will not endure it.
- LYDIA (to Paul and Silas). Can it be that you, O men of God,
Will suffer from the Roman rod?
You, good citizens and free,
Suffer the slave's indignity?
- PAUL. If our Lord permits it to be,
From stripes and bonds we would not flee,
Bonds and a prison may await,
God's witnesses, or soon or late.
'Tis thus our Lord is wide made known,
'Tis thus broadcast His truth is sown.
- SILAS. Yes we will thankfully rejoice,
If, while we suffer, truth hath voice!
- (Enter Roman officers, who, seizing PAUL and SILAS, lead them off to the Market-Place.)
- LYDIA. Alas, alas, good men and brave,
O that I had the power to save!
O what will become of them?
- LYDIA'S (children). See now! Look over in the Market-Place. As I live, they have brought Paul and Silas before the rulers. There, the magistrates are assembled, my father Mutius among them, in the place of hearing. That tall, large man is my father. He is the sternest of Romans, and when he gets his anger stirred, he is as cruel as a wounded wild beast!
- RUTH. But Paul and Silas are God's men, true,
And no cruel thing to them, must your father do!

(Exit MALUS for the Market-Place.)

- ANDREW. O see the crowds and the tumult !
 JAIRUS. Listen! there is the Public Crier!
 ALL. Listen! listen!
 CRIER (with a loud voice.) These men, being Jews, do exceedingly trouble our city, and teach customs which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, being Romans.
- ANDREW. What a wily accusation!
 JAIRUS. How dare they arrest men who have the rights of Roman citizens!
- ANDREW. And it is well known that, the greatest cause of their offending, Was from the maid the demon sending!
 RUTH. The people are angry, and the magistrates tear off their outer garments!
 MAGISTRATES (loudly). Go lictors; strip off their garments, let them be scourged!
 LYDIA (wringing her hands in grief). O, O, fell day of woe!
 How can they beat these good men so?

It seems to me,
That you all agree,

MALUS.

Helps them? Does it look like that? The rulers have cast them into prison, loaded them with irons, and charged the jailor to keep them safely!

RUTH.

MALUS.

O Malus! do you side with their persecutors?
Well, you see, little lady, I am not ready to take the consequences of siding with you. I confess that I stood by and held the garments of the men that beat Paul and Silas. The mob was furious, and you ought to be glad that your friends are safe sheltered in prison!

RUTH.

But it is all so unjust and cruel!

Adagio.

The musical score is written for three parts: a vocal line (treble clef), a piano accompaniment (grand staff), and a bass line (bass clef). The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4. The tempo is marked 'Adagio'. The lyrics are: 'Thine all pow-er, Bless-ed One! Thou the well be-lov-ed Son.' The piano part begins with a dynamic marking of 'p' (piano). The bass line provides a steady accompaniment with quarter notes.

Now the mob has gone, and we are alone,
 We'll patiently wait, while the night grows late.
 We'll pray and sing, to the Mighty King.
 We'll wait and pray, till the dawn of day,
 We cannot go home, till our friends with us come.
 And my strong faith
 Cheerily saith,
 Pray on, never fear,
 Our Helper is near!
 But, O mother we have prayed!
 And the answer is delayed!
 True you have prayed,
 But your faith is afraid;
 Which shows you are wrong;
 Now I simply ask you
 To be honest and true;
 And if no aid from heaven,
 In answer to your prayer is given,
 I ask this agony you'll not prolong,
 But own we're right, and you are wrong!
 Yes, own we're right, and you are wrong!

LYDIA (and children). Renounce the Lord!
Doubt His faithful Word!
Never, O never,
We will trust Him forever!
He is Almighty, and He will deliver!

ANDREW (to Malus and Anchises). Will you too,
Be honest and true,
And if to us from God in heaven,
Answer to our prayer be given;
Will you relent,
Of sin repent,
And come to Christ believing?

MALUS and ANCHISES. It is safe to agree,
For no answer there'll be!

In a way so ungainly.
When honest people are sleeping.
That Paul, a sad case is,
It's plain that he base is,
(If, indeed he can sane be!)
Why does not the jailor see
That he is in safe keeping!
- FIRST CITIZEN. Never yet was heard such singing,
Through the prison arches ringing!
- SECOND CITIZEN. No harm in Paul!
He simply heard God's call!
His comrade too, is brave;—
Yet in the stocks they did confine them—
Did in the inner prison bind them!
Will their God save
These men so brave?
- LYDIA. Yes, as weary hours grow longer,
Now at midnight sing they stronger.

LYDIA. Paul and Silas in the prison,
Honor thus the Saviour risen.
JAIRUS. Serving God with faith endearing,
Wrath of man they are not fearing!
FOURTH CITIZEN. Wrath of man! 'tis the Roman power!
Do they dare it in this hour;
Dream they vain, that this Philippi—
Second Rome—will show them pity,
If thus singing they do cry on,
Each shall feed a hungry lion!
LYDIA (and children). For man's favor were they suing,
That would be their soul's undoing!

FOURTH CITIZEN. Steps to stop this must be taken!
They will all the prisoners waken!
PRISONERS. Waked long since with joy we listen,
Glad to worship in the prison!
THIRD CITIZEN (aside to companions).
Sure there is no end
To Paul and his preaching!
To our temples no friend
By singing the pris'ners teaching!
The simple adore him,
And praising, implore him
To sing o'er his foes:
And unless we interpose,
He'll sweep all before him!
FOURTH CITIZEN (aside to companion).
In the darkness of night,
How strange his delight,
In the evil he has done.
No sign of relenting,
Nor yet of repenting;
He boasts of victory won!
With the first dawn of day
I'll to the rulers away!
Sure he plots against the throne.

RUTH (to Lydia).

While they pray, they praises offer,
As if thankful thus to suffer.

LYDIA.

Yes, this cup they're glad partaking,
Earthly treasures quite forsaking;
Like Christ, for them have no yearning.
To the world plan no returning.

Now this grace to us is given,
To know, God answereth from heaven!
May idols perish! I Him believe,
His blessed Son I do receive!

LYDIA.

In heaven, the angels glad rejoice,
As they behold your happy choice!

THIRD CITIZEN.

Sure, my religion is an error!
Of God's earthquake I'm in terror!
Suddenly its ponderous treading,
Through the city pallor spreading!

ANDREW.

Open wide the prison leaving,
Its foundations firm upheaving.

(Enter JAILOR.)

JAILOR.

Prison open! Prisoners fled! Merciful Powers! Where's my sword! I am a ruined man, I must die in dishonor!

PAUL (in a loud voice).

Do thyself no harm; we are all here!

JAILOR.

All here, good Paul! have none fled?
I truly thought away they'd sped!
I perceive, sirs, by this token,
Ye are men of God, and He hath spoken!
Yours surely is a holy will
Returning good, where I gave ill!

(Then seizing a light he hastens and falling down before Paul and Si'as earnestly asks).

Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

PAUL.

Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved!

(The Jailor brings them out of prison).

JAILOR.

May God help me to believe,
And this word of truth receive,
This night's terror
Showed me my error;
The quaking earth
My sins set forth.
And, too your singing in the prison,
Hath shown me Christ in truth is risen!
I praise Him that He doth forgive;
In His blest shadow, may I live.
Ye servants of the Living God,
I would be faithful to His word;
Come to my house, as it is meet,
I'll wash your stripes, and ye shall eat,
Forgive my cruel guilt and sin,
When rude, I last eve, thrust you in.

PAUL.

Forgiven all, brother beloved!
Your faith is now by God approved!
